

Dr. Walter Nicgorski
United States
Professor of Political Science

University:

Notre Dame University
Professor, Program of Liberal Studies and Concurrent Professor, Political Science

Discipline:

Political Science + Political Philosophy, American and Classical Political Philosophy,
Catholic Social and Political Thought

Academic background:

B.A., Georgetown University; Ph.D., University of Chicago, 1966

Other functions (selection):

Member, Academic Advisory Board of the Phoenix Institute. Former holder of the Lilly Endowment faculty fellowship, as well as research fellowships from the National Endowment for the Humanities, the Bradley Foundation, and the Earhart Foundation.

Publications (selection):

- Articles on Cicero and other topics have appeared in journals such as Political Theory, Interpretation, and the Political Science Reviewer
- Co-editor of An Almost Chosen People: The Moral Aspirations of Americans and Leo Strauss: Political Philosopher and Jewish Thinker.
- Editor of The Review of Politics (1994-2004).

Courses taught at the Phoenix Institute:

Notre Dame 1994 & 1996: "Nature, Political Order and Modern Democracy", Notre Dame 1997: "Basic Issues in Political Philosophy: The Classical-Modern Encounter."

E-mail: Nicgorski.1@nd.edu